

KAORI TAMURA 田村香織

Kaori Tamura (b.1987)'s works looks not only beautiful but delicate. She usually paints with tempera. Her tempera works are engrave with sharp pointed tool on the multiplication of tempera paints layer by layer, which is a very time consuming process. Her marvelous technique can change a simple wooden panel to a beautiful art.

Most of the time, She uses green color as a surface of paintings. This is often presented as an earthly element related to land. The artist takes it to a different level by using motif to hint at the cosmos and constellations, with her intension to symbolize both earth and cosmos. Since in Art Fair Tokyo2011, she has evolved her concept at her several exhibitions and expressed the deep human psyche through the actions of respiration and breathing.

Her paintings have been loved a lots of customers, and there are many collectors in Asia. Some of her new big paintings have been already decided to set up on the new luxurious hotel in Jakarta 2015.

This painting express "Phoenix descended to the earth for genetic modification"
The figure "∞∞" which are juxtapose right and left sides of painting are designed to represent the genetic structure of organism. There is also a similar genetic figure in the center of the painting. It is changing from the ordered structure of DNA to strange, because the descent of a phoenix cause genetic recombination
A legendary immortal bird, Phoenix is able to space and time warps. And it exists for changing the future of creature's life. The tail of the Phoenix in this painting represents space compression such as the black hole. Love is given to contradictions arising from it, special effects, and incidents that occurred at the tower.
